Recent Improvements to GSA MAS 73

At GSA, we're committed to finding operational efficiencies in all of the procurement vehicles we manage – and we take steps to improve transparency. With these goals in mind, we've enhanced GSA MAS 73 by revising descriptions of Special Item Numbers (SINs) in the solicitation and by clarifying the focus and types of services that fall within the scope of the MAS. We've also consolidated SINs where appropriate to reduce duplication among contract offerings.

We also removed the small-business set-aside designation for certain SINs included in GSA MAS 73 at the contract level (in response to a FAR change that allows set-asides at the task-order level). While our commitment to small business remains strong (as emphasized by the high percentage of small-business contractors in the MAS program), removing the set-aside designation will offer more choices and flexibility to users of GSA MAS 73. Agencies needing to achieve small-business socioeconomic goals can do so by designating the set-aside status at the task-order level.
