The PBS Customer Dashboard and eRETA

The Public Buildings Service (PBS) has a variety of different systems, eRETA being just one of them. Together these systems make up PBS’ real estate data. In an effort to provide our customers with effective and strategic solutions, PBS developed the Customer Dashboard to consolidate a broad range of data into a central portal with flexible, filtered views and weekly data refreshes.

What does the PBS Customer Dashboard allow me to do?
- Access current data sourced directly from PBS systems, available 24/7
- Evaluate the status of your projects, Occupancy Agreements, and RWAs
- View annual or monthly rent bills by bureau, location, or individual OA
- Gather meaningful portfolio trends at a national, regional, or local level
- Prepare for upcoming occupancy planning and chart requirements due dates

What are the different visualizations it offers?
- My Projects (source systems: ePM REXUS, G-REX and eRETA)
- My RWAs (source system: eRETA)
- My Occupancies (source systems: OA Tool, REXUS)
- My Rent (source system: OA Bill)

Does this mean I don’t need access to source systems like eRETA?
- No, it just means you have a centralized location to access some of your agency’s real estate data that spans across several PBS systems. If you are looking for information on RWA Work Requests, any in-depth information on accepted RWAs, or if you are submitting any information to GSA (e.g. RWA Work Requests, RWA Amendments), you must continue to use eRETA.

Where can I find more information about the PBS Customer Dashboard (e.g. gaining access, training)?
